The Company will protect the privacy of its employees, by indicating a person responsible for the data confidentiality, in accordance with current the legislation, committed not to disclose or disseminate personal information without prior consent, unless otherwise specified by the provisions of the law.

The acquisition, processing and storage of such information must occur through specific procedures to ensure the prevention of unauthorized access, in accordance with privacy protection legislation.

2.12.1 Use and share of information in social networks

Mastrotto respects the right to free expression, freedom and privacy of all recipients of this code, but expects all employees and business partners to be responsible for using the COMPANY's name, brand and image in a responsible way, even in virtual places such as social networks.

Social networks, at work and in personal life, should not be used in a way that exposes private information or confidentiality of our company. Thus, it is not allowed the dissemination of content that exposes the image of collaborators, products and productive processes of the company.

These disclosures when performed improperly may tarnish the company in the competitive market.

Part III

Implementation Methods

3.1 Prevention System

According to the current regulations and aimed to planning and managing corporate activities, targeting at improvement and efficiency, equity, transparency and quality, the company must take appropriate measures for the organization, management and control of its activities.

These measures are intended to:

- To prevent unlawful behavior (or, in any case, contrary to the rules of this Code), by any person who operates within its structure or in reason of it;
- Identifying and promptly eliminating any hazardous situation.

Taking into account the complexity of the business activities and the organizational structure, the Company will adopt a system for the delegation of powers and functions.

In particular, this system provides for the explicit and specific assignment of tasks to employees with proper skills and knowledge, assuring them adequate autonomy in the management of the resources allocated to them, without compromising the company's right to verify their performance.

3.2 Penalties for non-compliance with the rules of conduct

EMPLOYEES

- In case of noncompliance with this Conduct and Ethics Code, the penalties will be permeated by the principles of fairness, equality and equity, and will be defined by the Compliance Committee and Directorate, respecting current legislation. The disciplinary measures don't include the use of mental or physical coercion, corporal punishment, violence threats, warns or public punishments, fees and the remotion of benefits established in contract.

SUPPLIERS AND OUTSOURCED THIRD PARTIES

- In case of noncompliance with this Conduct and Ethics Code, the sanctions will be permeated by the principles of fairness, equity and equity, and considering the criticality of the act and the impact caused to Mastrotto, it will be evaluated by the Compliance Committee, Directorate and contracting area service.

3.3 Compliance with the Ethics and Conduct Code and Internal Control

The Company disseminates a mindset focused on control activities at all levels, given its contribution to improving efficiency.

The term "internal control" refers to the necessary tools to verify the activities of each department, with the objectives of ensuring compliance with the Law and the company's procedures, protecting the resources of the company, managing its activities efficiently and, finally, providing accurate and complete accounting data.

Thus, the Company commits itself, on the one hand, to adopt appropriate measures and control procedures to ensure that the true conduct of the company and its employees are an expression of the values established in this Code and, on the other hand, introduce specific sanctions systems whenever violations occur.

The responsibility for implementing an internal control system is shared at all levels of the organizational structure. As a result, all recipients of this Code, within the scope of their respective functions, are responsible for the establishment and proper functioning of the control system.

The employees must immediately report to their supervisors and managers of the company to whom they work:

- Any violation or inducement for law breaking, regulations, as well as provisions of this Code or internal procedures;
- Any irregularity or negligence in the maintenance of accounting records, in the preservation of relevant documents intended to comply with internal accounting obligations and management reports.

The Directorate shall carry out the necessary analyses on the reports received to ascertain the facts and promote the most appropriate measures and initiatives, including the proposal to apply sanctions against those responsible in accordance with the law, collective agreements and contracts.

Anyone who reports good faith conduct or wrongdoing will not suffer adverse effects as a result of such action.

In any case, confidentiality is guaranteed for employees who report misconduct or irregularities in good faith, except for the requirements of the Law.

3.4 The Disciplinary System

The Compliance Committee is responsible for verifying and ascertaining any breach of obligations under this Code and for communicating the results to the Directorate and the Administrative Council Board.

Failure to comply with the obligations set forth in this Code may result in the imposition of disciplinary sanctions, also taking into account what is established in the special section of the organization, management and control model.

The disciplinary sanctions involving employees of the company will be applied by the Administrative Council Board or by the appointed manager.

Violations of this Ethics and Conduct Code by members of the Directorate of the Company will be penalized by the Administrative Council Board or by the General Assembly.

Both infractions committed by company employees and those practiced by members of the Directorate may result in the adoption of disciplinary measures of an educational nature, without any loss to the adoption of administrative and / or judicial measures.

The measure will be decided in the absence of one or all of the members involved in the breach.

If the violation is committed by employees, external consultants or those who supply goods or services to the Company, the sanction will be determined by the Directorate or the assigned manager. In the most serious events, the sanction may result in termination of the contract, without any loss to the right of the company to seek compensation for damages suffered as an outcome of misconduct.
